WRITING

Hello everyone,

Today I'm writing about my native place - the hero-city of Tula.

Why did I choose this extraordinary topic? Yesterday I saw some old photos in the album and decided to tell everybody about this beautiful city.

Tula was founded in 1146 and is famous for its gingerbreads, samovars and Levsha Legend. Weapons produced in Tula are known all over the world.

Though Tula is quite a big city (though its population is about 500,000), where you can visit Belousov Park (one of the best parks in Russia), the Kremlin with red towers and the Weapon Museum (the building is like a helmet).

You should also taste delicious gingerbreads and see everything by yourself! Otherwise, your understanding of Russia will be incomplete.

And what are your native places like? Why are they worth visiting?
